Unhinged or unholy? Fiend or fraud? That's what authorities had to decide about the French nun Marie-Thérèse Noblet (1889-1930). She suffered sudden diseases that were as quickly cured, chokings, night beatings, unclean visions of blasphemous scenes, violent shakes witnessed by onlookers, foul assaults from filthy beasts, including one she recalled as "full of terrible beauty with eyes full of hate." Then there's Sr. Jeanne of the Angels, the seventeenth-century prioress of her Ursuline convent, plagued by diabolical visits with an explicitly erotic element, which spread, epidemic-like, to the Ursuline sisters under her care, whose convulsive attacks and obscene contortions scandalized all who witnessed them. Were these sisters really demonic? Deranged? Or merely deceitful? That's the first question exorcists must answer — the question addressed in these pages by the world-famous French neuropsychiatrist Jean Lhermitte. Genuine demonic possessions, admits Lhermitte, evade the explanations and exceed the competence of even the wisest physicians: they must be handled not in the clinic, but by the Church. At the same time, exorcisms will not help the symptoms of those who are mentally ill. So skilled physicians and trained clergy must press past the visions, the gibbering, the howlings and grindings of teeth, and the other frightening symptoms to discern whether they're dealing with real possession, or only pathology, mental or physical. That's the work Dr. Lhermitte undertakes in these pages. With sober clarity and reserve, he reviews the detailed clinical records of scores of cases that startled and alarmed our forefathers as well as the cases of many souls that he personally examined: unfortunate souls judged "possessed," who manifested symptoms ranging from picturesque to loathsome and pitiful. By means of these cases, Lhermitte illuminates the criteria that the Church holds to be decisive signs of genuine possession ... and those that assure us that — despite filth and fits, shrieks and slobbering — in other cases the influence of the demon is sought in vain. Good priests and wise Catholic physicians know that, for the sake of their souls, those who are disturbed must never be hastily examined or casually judged. True or False Possession? will teach you, too, not to rush to judgment and show you when it's time — right now! — to call the priest.

Because It Is Bitter, and Because It Is My Heart Taylor & Francis

Julius Caesar Augustus, founder of the early Roman Empire, replaced the estate of the late Roman Republic and raised taxes in conjunction with the glorious incarnation of Christ. Christ's ministry lasted the few days of three and a half years, culminating in his atoning death for the kingdom of sinful human nature. Humanity in faith was individually summoned to accept Christ as the antitypical lamb of God, which takes away the sin of the world in fulfilment of Gen. 3:15. Systems of faith/belief arms would develop for believers to join. Wars of words broke out between churches and civil states regarding the nature of Christ and other traditions. Some systems of faith/belief operated within the Ten Commandments hedge, while others did not. Roman Catholicism did not operate within that hedge, disregarding the fourth commandment, thus showing contempt for the law. Believers in the Dark Ages, Middle Ages, Reformation, and post-Reformation eras broke away from the Roman Catholic Church system to follow Bible truth, causing people to give their lives and even die for their faith.

Over 50 years of an iconic classic! This international bestseller and inspiration for a beloved movie is a heroic story of friendship and belonging. No one ever said life was easy. But Ponyboy is pretty sure that he's got things figured out. He knows that he can count on his brothers, Darry and Sodapop. And he knows that he can count on his friends—true friends who would do anything for him, like Johnny and Two-Bit. But not on much else besides trouble with the Socs, a vicious gang of rich kids whose idea of a good time is beating up on "greasers" like Ponyboy. At least he knows what to expect—until the night someone takes things too far. The Outsiders is a dramatic and enduring work of fiction that laid the groundwork for the YA genre. S. E. Hinton's classic story of a boy who finds himself on the outskirts of regular society remains as powerful today as it was the day it was first published. Isaiah 1-39 Penguin

Monsignor Hilary C. Franco, advisor to the Permanent Observer Mission of the Holy See to the United Nations, has led a remarkable life in the Catholic faith. This rich memoir chronicles his amazing journey as a self-described "poor country priest" who forged deep and meaningful friendships with many of the most important religious figures in the Catholic Church. He not only worked closely with Archbishop Fulton J. Sheen and counted Mother Teresa as a friend, but also has had the honor of working with six papal leaders: Pope John XXIII, Pope Paul VI, Pope John Paul II, Pope Benedict XVI, and the current Pope Francis. What emerges is a history of modern Catholicism and faith as seen through the eyes of a man who was a personal witness to events that continue to shape the world. Hilary Franco, an Italian-American who grew up in the Bronx in the '30s and '40s, graduated from the Pontifical Roman Seminary with a degree in Biblical Theology--later earning degrees in sociology (Fordham) and Canon Law (Lateran University, Rome)--and ordained a priest at the age of 22. Upon returning from Rome during the reign of Pope Pius XII, he served in several parishes. The ordinary course of Father Franco's life changed dramatically when he asked his spiritual hero, the popular author and television star Archbishop Fulton J. Sheen, if they could meet so he could ask him about his books. To Father Franco's surprise (and the disbelief of his superiors), he got his meeting, and they quickly became friends. Impressed with his inquisitive mind, fluency in Italian and Latin, and Scripture training, Bishop Sheen asked Father Franco to assist him at the National Office of the Society for the Propagation of the Faith, which he did for eight years

(1959-1967). A few months after Pius's death in 1958, the newly elected Pope, John XXIII, announced his intention to convene an ecumenical council. The two men (with thousands of others) were thrown into the preparatory work for the Second Vatican Council (1962-1965). Father Franco would soon be in daily contact with men like Giovanni Battista Montini, Albino Luciani, Karol Wojtyła, and Joseph Ratzinger--respectively, the future Popes Paul VI, John Paul I, John Paul II and Benedict XVI--as well as with notable Council periti ("experts") Karl Rahner and Hans Küng. Franco had a front-row seat to history as Paul VI led the Council in the spirit of his predecessor and then steered the Church through the social, political, and theological upheavals of the '60s and '70s. Whether conveying to Paul VI President Johnson's desire that the Pontiff host Vietnam peace talks (and the Pontiff's immediate, favorable response to a grateful president) or surviving the psychic trauma of Red Brigade terrorism, Franco has never been far from the action. Among his most searing memories is that of hearing the collective hush of the crowd below his Vatican office after the attempt on the life of John Paul II. Father Franco's life of service always has him traveling the globe, never confining him to a desk isolated from the common people he was determined from his youth to help. Shortly after the close of the Council, the Vatican called Father Franco to serve in its Diplomatic Corps at the Apostolic Delegation in Washington D.C., and then in the Prefecture of the Economic Affairs of the Holy See in the Vatican. During the decades that he was in charge of the English Desk of the Vatican Congregation (1970-1994), Father Franco was named Monsignor (1971) and then Prelate (1981). To this day, Monsignor Franco continues to serve the Church as Adviser for the Permanent Observer Mission of the Holy See to the United Nations. Having the personal privilege of knowing several people later canonized Saints--including John XXIII, John Paul II, and Mother Teresa of Calcutta--Monsignor Franco humbly but effectively walks the corridors of spiritual power in New York, the United States and Rome.
